

Dear Diary,

Here I am, at International Convention. I'm nervous. I would love to lead the International Order of the B'nai B'rith Girls as their 67th N'siah, but it's more than that. I'm nervous because I see the potential in this room, and I need to make sure that potential becomes a reality. In the first row there's a BBG with brown hair who hardly ever talks, and in the back row is a tan BBG who likes to sing and dance; but if they came together, they might just be a perfect match to plan a conference call or draft a release or even plan a program. There are so many eyes looking at me, and I can see them—blue, green, brown, gray. When will these eyes meet, when will our Order become one, the united body of the B'nai B'rith Girls? Today! Today is the day I've been writing, the one I've been journaling about. Because if elected as N'siah, I want to leave this Order in the most incredible state I possibly can. Through community service and globalization and devotion from each and every member, I see my diary entries in 2012 not about the end of the world, but the start of a revolution.

Respectively submitted with undying love for the diary entries of yesterday, today, & tomorrow and the International Order of the B'nai B'rith Girls,

I remain

To do list:

Doodles, goals, and ideas:

Counterparts

The astonishing girls that are in my diary every day

- Develop the N'siah Network further to have constant communication between regions that are similar and different to get more ideas and to help regions grow
- Send out at least one email a month updating N'siot on what is going on in our Order
- Create a N'siah release every other month that will compile resources from BBGs across the Order, these resources will be emailed out and also available on dashboard
- Create a Council or Region plan of action to help specific grow and develop
- Weekly updates to N'siah Dashboard page to keep all council, regional, and chapter N'siot in the loop with what is going on
- Have shot outs in emails and conference calls to the N'siot who has done a spectacular job in helping to move their region forward
- Hold monthly Exec Conference calls
- Have an online forum for N'siot to turn to for new ideas and help

Globalization-Global Ambassadors

The teens who work to keep the international dream alive

- Have regional Global Ambassador liaisons who connect other countries with North American regions and keep them informed
- Develop stronger relationships with other countries
- Work on International projects which BBYO from across the world and Tzameret will all work on together
- Have more teens from other countries attend North American programs such as IC, CLTC, ILTC, and Kallah
- Give Global Ambassadors more specific goals and tasks
- Have Global Ambassadors communicate more often with each other and work together on projects their countries can work together on
- Fundraise more money to help International teens make their way to North American programs
- Monthly communication with International N'siot

67th International Board

Those whose diaries are filled with the dreams of tomorrow

- Hold weekly calls with each board member to see how she is progressing
- Hold bimonthly board conference calls to create unity and keep everyone on the same page
- Send updates to the board on how regions are doing based on travel evaluations
- Work cohesively and make sure that at all times we are all on the same page
- Keep close and constant communication with the Grand Aleph Godol to make sure we both have a clear picture of what is going on in the International Order
- Make sure the BBG and AZA boards work cohesively

International Chairs

Those who write about the success of their hard work

- Create chairs that are meaningful and needed such as possibly an organization outreach chair who will help get BBYO involved with other organizations and an advice chair for struggling chapters to reach out to
- Correlate chairs with specific board positions and ensure that there is constant communication
- Make sure that chairs do not feel neglected and understand the importance and impact of their position
- Create specific goals with each individual chairs and

Travels

The memories and pictures that will never be forgotten

- Create a defined travel schedule early on
- Communicate with councils and regions that visitations occur at times that benefits them
- Speak with Staff people to hear what they succeed and struggle with
- Speak with Regional and Council boards to find out how the International Board, myself, or any other international figures can help them progress
- Constantly be prepared to meet with local agencies, parents, alumni and discuss BBYO
- Help run meaningful programs and help give teens an international view of BBYO
- Promote Summer Programs everywhere
- Write follow up reports to send to international board and staff
- Constantly keep up with Dashboard letting people know where my travels are
- Consistently update a blog for all BBYO members to see on the travels made by myself and the Grand Aleph Godol

Growing our Movement

The growth that begins with the dreams we first write but on paper

- Work with the S'ganit to increase programming standards which directly correlates with our membership, the better the programs the more girls will want to come back
- Work with the Aym Ha-Chaverot to create a membership campaign that will get teens actively excited to recruit new members
- Grow the reputation of BBYO by working with regions and councils to create relationships with local organizations
- Work very closely with increasingly smaller regions in order to help them turn around and grow

- Utilize the AIPAC- BBYO relationship to help promote initiatives like Speak Up
- Have councils and regions utilize this relationship for information and resources for chapter and regional programming
- Increase the relationship through releases, conference calls, and AIPAC information meetings

Panim

The growth that is becoming a reality, the organization that helps us help others

- Help councils and regions utilize Panim as a resource in helping them with service, advocacy, and philanthropy
- Promote Panim programs besides just the Summer of Impact programs
- Further develop and strengthen the Panim- BBYO relationship
- Work with Panim to create releases and conference calls to give more BBYO teens resources to help their communities

Teen Connection

The future members and leaders who will continue growing our movement

- Work with the Aym Ha-Chaverot to establish more Teen Connection programs across the Order
- Work with the Aym Ha-Chaverot to develop a more clear picture on how to organize Teen Connection
- Redevelop who's role Teen Connection is to plan and organize for regions and councils
- Start girl empowerment programs like "Rosh Hodesh: it's a girl's thing" for middle school girls, this type of programs helps develop self esteem and leadership
- Work with Teen Connection chairs to create monthly releases on events for middle school teens

International Staff

The ones who enable us to make our diary entries and dreams come true

- Create a cohesive work place for the International Board and staff
- Send staff members reports on region and council visits and all current projects
- Serve on the Board of Directors in a manner that represents the International Order and what is best for BBYO as a whole
- Work as a liaison between staff, International board members, Execs, and general members

Serving As N'siah

The diary entries to come with the success of our Order

- Constantly working to improve the state of our Order to make sure we continue progressing in a positive direction
- Work to create the strongest August and February Execs possible, that will help develop a strong Execs bond that will in turn make this year the most impressive yet
- Give my heart and soul into making the B'nai B'rith Girls the best we can be
- Represent our Order with pride, respect, and honor
- Not only serve as a positive role model to younger members but to also serve as a resource to any member
- To listen to every BBG in this Order and represent BBGs in a positive light
